How to Use These Pages

These combination ratings are designed as a quick reference for residential new construction. There are different pages for each available tonnage. On each page, there are ratings with Carrier multipoise fan coils and ceiling soffit fan coils.

AHRI numbers shown in this document were accurate when this was published. Unfortunately, AHRI numbers change without notice and this document may not be 100% accurate in the future. Always check the validity of the AHRI numbers in this document and print a certificate for your job file.

The top of each page describes the air conditioner nominal

The fancils are sorted by Multipoise (ceiling or closet installed) or Ceiling Soffit installed

Airflow at 0.5" is shown. All of the fan coils have some adjustments that can be made in the

To achieve more appropriate airflow, sometimes a different speed should be set by the installer. The required speed tap is shown. On the FV4 models, (HI) refers to the maximum airflow setting.

In addition to the GH5SAN, some sizes also show the two-stage product highlighted in green and the various products with inverter compressors highlighted in purple.

For each AHRI number, Appendix M ratings (SEER/EER) are shown in gray while Appendix M1 ratings (SEER₂/EER₂) are in white. On January 1, 2023, the Appendix M ratings will be listed as "Production Stopped" in the AHRI directory.

On the systems designated as a "Minisplit Family," the power for the indoor unit is fed from the outdoor and a lineset with insulation on both pipes is required.

Always verify the AHRI number online and print the certificate for
